The huge, black, cold hogs. The lamp gave up its light. The room was empty and quiet. They searched in the dark, shifting their books.

Worse than expected. Dark, empty world. Dark and empty. The room was dark, the air was still, the silence was thick. In dreams, they gathered, as if they were present.

When the curtains were drawn, the window was black. The curtains were drawn, the room was dark. In dreams, they gathered, as if they were present.

With the curtains open, we saw a man.

Then, in the center, a hillside, marked by a blue flag.
