Part 2 of Paper

This part is due March 29th (Next Thursday)

This is the theory part of your paper. You need to explain your three factors. Integrate your personal theories with sources.

This should be in the following format:
1. You should have an introductory paragraph. (within which you should mention the three factors you will discuss).

Recall that this is not an introduction to your paper, but an introduction to your theory section. Hence, you can begin this portion of the paper with something like:

“In this section I will explore the three factors that impact abortion. First, I will examine ... Then I will examine... Finally, I will consider....”

2. Next you should discuss your three factors; one by one. (Three paragraphs at least)

3. Finally, you should have a concluding paragraph.

The last sentence should be something like:
“ In the next section I will present my empirical analysis ..”

4.) After the last paragraph you should list the three hypotheses you will test. You only need to list them.
You should have one hypothesis for each factor.

\[ H_1: \text{People who are pro-choice then to be more religious} \]
\[ H_2: \]
\[ H_3: \]

You also need to generate one alternative rival hypothesis. (This should be included with your list of three hypotheses). The hypothesis by itself is fine. No need for a written explanation.

\[ H_4: \]

Remember that an alternative rival hypothesis is a different explanation from your dependent variable, i.e., you need to select a different independent variable.

5.) On a separate (and last) page you should have your list of sources.

This is not counted towards the 3 to 5 pages. The title of this page should be named References.

You need to have six sources (two per factor).
For sources: at least four need to be from an academic source (academic journal article or book).

Another one (or two) can be from a newspaper article or magazine.

Only one source can be from a personal website.

Statistics cited from a government organization (i.e., census bureau, FBI, etc.) can be counted as an academic source (but only for one.)

Within the text of your paper citations should be embedded and not footnoted (except for websites).

Remember we are using the format where we are attributing a source to a particular author without a direct quote at the end of the sentence. Here you should cite the author’s last name and year of the source (Williams, 1998).

If it is a law journal without an author, cite the name of the journal and year (i.e., Harvard Law Review, 1982).

If it is a newspaper without an author name cite the name of the newspaper and the year (i.e., New York Times, 1996).

Websites go into a footnote and not in the reference page.

Court cases:

If you have an one sentence quote then it should be in the form:
According to Williams (2006, p.20) “we live in a time when..”
Williams (2006, p.20) stated “we live in a time when...”

Papers should be 3 to 5 pages doubled-spaced. 12 point font. With one -inch margins.

More than an one sentence quote use block quotes:

Williams (1986, p.20) stated:
