Acknowledgements:

As collector, synthesized of the Simone story, I must profusely thank profusely many collaborators who have sent insights, beautiful stories, personal experiences, and factual details that bring Irv Simone to life. This effort arose from an e-mail discourse with Barry Lawrence, who like myself, swam distance events for Grinnell—he did it better! Barry stimulated encouraged me to collect from newspaper sources like the Scarlet and Black, the student newspaper, the Grinnell Cyclone, the student annual book, the Grinnell Herald Register, and the Des Moines Register articles, "box score" times, and event items during Irv Simone’s career. Barry inspired heeded me on to improve the story, and add detail supporting the written effort, my writing through countless revisions. Barry, like Bob Grinney, Jim Jacobson, and Stan Norman, were generous to a fault in giving me copies of their Grinnell Papers papers and yearbooks to help start the story. Barry, Wally Bragdon, Jim Jacobson, Bill Hejna, Bill Simmons and others have read and critiqued this memoir to support me in picking the topics and thematic threads that permeate this story. Bill Simmons deserves special recognition for holding me to high review standards for punctuation, quotations and clarity review standards of the material presented in this memoir.

I deeply appreciate the generous contributions of Mrs. Sue Simone Asinger, daughter of Irv and Patty Simone, who opened for my review with selected materials from Irv Simone’s personal scrapbook, which helped me to quote his own personal thoughts. Irv’s personal notes and comments on his life add a wonderful dimension to his memoir making it, in part, autobiographic.
So, also then, posthumously, I am deeply indebted to Irvin Leo Simone, whose original thoughts are quoted, summarized, and memorialized in this document. Additionally, Dr. David Asinger, radiologist, graciously provided a story indicating that diving may have been both learned and a genetic component passed from Grandpa Irv Simone to his grandson, Dr. Richard Asinger, cardiologist and amateur photographer, generously assembled and edited family photographs of Irv and Patty Simone, providing a dimension of this story previously not available to me from Grinnell College sources.

Mrs. Cheryl Neubert at the Iowa Room, Archive at the Burling Library at of Grinnell College graciously opened their microfilm files of newsprint, allowing me access to records not kept by either the Athletic Department or the Midwest Conference headquarters. Mr. Jim George, Grinnell College photographer, generously donated his photographic negatives to the college archives. He took time out of retirement to share these essential images. - Athletic Director, Dee Fairchild, and Patty Johnson (now retired), worked tirelessly to query the Midwest Conference for details and information. Carolyn Runyan, Howie (Howard) Runyan’s wife, provided essential monographs and letters that outlined Irv’s thinking about athletic championship performance and the coaching endeavor.

I must honor and thank Dr. Marvin Clein and more especially his second wife, Mrs. Donna Rood-Clein, who shared information about Dr. Clein, (deceased 23 October 2005) and who supported Irv Simone in using his pacing and training concepts useful in American Nordic Ski training. - Similarly, Mr. David McCartney, director of the Archives at the University of Iowa, Mr. David McCartney, Director was able to provide the Theses of Dr. James Counsilman, (Propulsion of Two Crawl Strokes), and Dr. John C. Truesdale — Irv Simone’s Father-in-law —, Masters and Doctoral Theses, (Athletic Intelligence).
giving insight into the mature writings of Irv Simone in his later years. Irv Simone wrote a prototype-thesis on Temporal Perceptions in 1964, but never took the course work for the Ph-D and thus, sadly, his undeferred thesis was not available in the Archives of the University.

My understanding of Irv Simone’s work in sailing, camping, canoeing, and other outdoor skills was embellished and enhanced by Susan Ratliff Drake (Class of 1958) and Kay Rook Norman, (Class of 1961). Sue and Kay worked as counselors under Coach Simone in the 1950s at Camp Hillaway in Minnesota.

Here, I would like to honor and acknowledge President Russell K. Osgood of Grinnell College who graciously set aside space in the Physical Education Complex for a trophy case containing the memorabilia of the Simone Era at Grinnell. His personal generosity allows recognition of Irv Simone and his many swimmers who participated loyally and strove for the excellence that Irv required of his troops. Similarly, many contributed to the memorial for Irv in the Complex. To them, thank you for your contributions to his memory.

I am indebted to many swimming colleagues; co-captains Bill Simons, Jim Jacobson (recently deceased 5 Oct 2005), Stan Norman, Paul Torno, Mike Lehmann, John Pike, Jon Walker, John Paterson, Joel Stubbs, and Bob Grindey. These are swimmers who have all read and commented on the document, assuring accuracy about the racing times of individuals as a manifestation of Grinnell’s swimming history during the Simone Era.

To I thank my wife, Jo Ann, who was not a Grinnellian but who was generous in her allowing me time and travel to develop this wonderful story. Finally, it is my hope that this monograph will stimulate efforts on the part of others, who were later in the Grinnell swimming experience, to develop histories of the Ray Obermiller and Erin Hurley.
Eras as well as perhaps other broad understandings of athletic endeavors at Grinnell in the Midwest Conference.