

How I learned to be a department chair - before I was 10 years old -

Marshal Matt Dillon was created for the radio and TV series Gunsmoke by writer John Meston, who envisioned him as a man ... whose hair is probably red, if he's got any left. ... but life and his enemies have left him looking a little beat up ... steadfast, honest, absolutely incorruptible, ... he was invariably fair and impartial in the performance of his duties, even when it required subordinating his personal views concerning people he would occasionally mete out harsh treatment to those who ... unwisely pushed him too far. Matt was also notably compassionate toward those who had fallen on hard times ...

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Matt_Dillon_\(Gunsmoke\))

